Choosing Starling at login

Installing Starling doesn't replace your current desktop — it adds a session you pick at the login screen. To start it:

1. Click your name at the login screen.
2. Open the session menu — usually a gear, or a small icon in a lower corner of the password box.
3. Choose Starling from the list, then enter your password and sign in.

Starling stays selected for next time. The session menu only appears with a Wayland-capable login manager (GDM has one); it looks a little different on LightDM or SDDM, but the step is the same — find the session picker and choose Starling. (See the Installation Guide if you don't see a session menu at all.)
